

Hunt Ready

PREPARING FOR YOUR WESTERN MONTANA HUNT

Archery season is right around the corner so... have you been shooting your bow from every position imaginable?

That might be what it takes to bring that bull down. Often times the perfect shot just doesn't happen, so you need to be prepared to take the best shot possible in any given situation. Brush, Trees, Flies, Bees, Sweat Drops, Sun Spots and more can influence your shot.

Shots like this are Rare
Are You Ready?

Accuracy is important, but the bigger question is how long can you keep still with little annoyances and be able to draw that perfectly silent, deadly shot?

Remember Elk can see an ant move a mile away...well maybe not that far, but the point is you have to be able to go from Zero to Let Her Fly!! in a split second, with such precision, that the elk never sees you move.

DISTANCE ACCURACY STAMINA DRAW

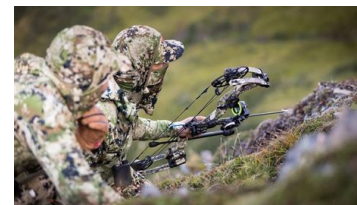

Based on your shooting abilities we will do our best to get you in the best possible shooting location, for clear line of site, and as close as possible. But the further you can shoot with accuracy, the more opportunity you will have to bring something home

Practice your Shots: Standing, Kneeling, Alternate left and right knees, Crouched Down, Angles, Up Hill, Down hill. Put your target behind some brush, or in some trees, make sure you can hit dead center even with obstacles.

To hunt an elk you have to act like an elk... during Archery Season - Elk are in the Rut, so we use scent and plenty of it, are you okay with having scent on your gear... please consider this when shopping and packing. To get where you need to be depending on the given scenario, you might just need cover scent to blend in with the natural surroundings, or you might need to smell nice and pretty like a cow elk with a little urine on ya, yes it will come out in the wash, but you might need to SMELL just right to get the job done!

Archery Hunts are Tough Hunts, the Days are Long and the Night are Short. You will put in 18-20 hour days!

Your day will start anywhere from 3-4:00 am, staying in the field all day till dark, getting you back for dinner, shower and bed at 11:00pm or later. So during the day when your guide says lets set up at a water hole/ wallow it is two fold: Elk are not moving in the heat of the day, so before when we said to get an elk, act like an elk, this will be your chance to grab a quick nap, and be ready to run and gun for the after noon session, when temperatures cool down, and the elk fire up again.
